The Department of Pharmacology & Toxicology, Collaborative Program in Addiction Studies and the Institute of Health Policy, Management & Evaluation present:

Reflections on the North American Opioid Crisis

Join leading Canadian clinical pharmacologist and epidemiologist for a lecture and discussion on the clinical, social and political implications of drug (mis)use and North America’s opioid crisis

Thursday, October 19, 2017
9.30-10:30 a.m.

Health Sciences Building, Room 610
155 College St., Toronto

Featuring:

Dr. David Juurlink
Professor of Medicine and Pediatrics, U of T Medicine
Clinical Epidemiologist, Institute of Health Policy, Management & Evaluation
Scientist, Sunnybrook Research Institute & Institute for Clinical Evaluative Sciences

Reading:

- Opioids: Whatever happened to ‘first, do no harm’? (Globe and Mail, August 25, 2016)
- Is there still a place for opioids? (Sunnybrook Research Institute Magazine, 2016)
- It's time to end Canada's opioid epidemic — an open letter to Canada's new minister of health (Ottawa Life, November 30, 2015)